GREEN SAGES

Taking climate action for a sustainable future

Our aims

- Create opportunities for older people to take collaborative action on environmental issues.
- Provide accessible information on climate change and the environment.
- Develop intergenerational opportunities for older people to mentor and learn from other generations.
- Contribute to policy, research and advocacy on the impact of environmental issues on older people.

COTA Green Sages

COTA Green Sages are older Victorians who are concerned about climate change and the environmental legacy our generation is leaving for our children, grandchildren and future generations.

Who can join?

Any person who is over 50 years can join. We encourage people to be members of COTA Victoria.

What's involved?

As COTA volunteers, Green Sages:

- take action on climate change and participate in other environmental campaigns and projects
- contribute to COTA policy development on environmental issues
- adopt leadership roles in areas of interest
- encourage others to get involved
- participate in discussions and other Green Sages activities
- report back to COTA on events and activities.

Our vision

Our vision is for a sustainable and caring community in which older people alongside younger people take action on climate change and create an environment our children, grandchildren and future generations can live in with joy, respect and health.
